

Rami Kadi Shines at the United Nations Global Impact Awards with Couture and Bridal Debut

On November 16th, at the iconic Walt Disney Estate in Beverly Hills, Maison Rami Kadi showcased its exclusive couture and bridal ready-to-wear collections at the United Nations Global Impact Awards. The prestigious gala, held in honor of the UN's World Tolerance and Poverty Day, brought together global leaders and philanthropists committed to poverty alleviation, climate action, and global peace.

Rami Kadi's presentation featured 24 gowns, including 12 from his acclaimed Fall/Winter 2024/25 Meydān Couture Collection and 12 never-before-seen pieces from his debut Bridal Ready-to-Wear collection, Unveiled.

The Meydān collection, inspired by the raw elegance of horses, reflected the beauty of nature through rich textures and earthy tones. The Unveiled collection, Kadi's first-ever bridal ready-to-wear line, emphasized sustainability with luxurious French lace and ethically sourced embellishments.

Rami Kadi's participation in the event highlighted his belief in fashion as a tool for global change. "Fashion is a powerful tool for storytelling," Kadi remarked. "Through my designs, I hope to raise awareness about global collaboration and inspire others to contribute to a better world." The evening showcased the power of creativity and compassion, aligning fashion with meaningful causes.

The United Nations Global Impact Awards continues to be a vital platform for inspiring action toward a more sustainable and equitable future. As the Maison prepares to unveil the full Unveiled collection, audiences can anticipate an exclusive, immersive presentation across the brand's social media platforms.

Rami Kadi's work exemplifies the potential for fashion to drive positive change, inspiring global conversations and contributing to a more sustainable world.
